JD recently announced the opening of its third self-operated warehouse and distribution center in California. JD's logistics division in the United States stated that the company will use an automated system to eliminate the difficulties faced by the North American supply chain, including the sharp increase in warehouse demand and storage costs.

Direct Sales Model: JD's self-operated stores follow a business to consumer model, meaning products are sold directly by JD, which also issues the invoices. Third-party stores use JD's platform, but the products are shipped by manufacturers or other merchants who pay JD for platform usage.
